American Catholic Philosophical Quarterly Article Submission Guidelines
(Rev. 04/2015)

Editorial Policy

The American Catholic Philosophical Quarterly (ACPQ) is the official journal of the American Catholic Philosophical Association. Established in 1927, under the title The New Scholasticism, this peer-reviewed journal publishes scholarly articles, topical discussions, and book reviews in all areas of philosophy (including history of philosophy) relevant to the Catholic intellectual tradition.

Articles of fewer than 12,000 words (including notes) are preferred. Longer articles may be returned to the author with an invitation to submit an abbreviated version. Rarely is a manuscript accepted outright; most papers undergo some revision before publication.

Manuscripts are blind reviewed. Those that pass an initial review by the Editor or an Associate Editor will be sent to one or more external referees. The entire process of review normally takes several months.

Instructions for submitting a manuscript

1. Submission of a manuscript is understood to imply that the manuscript is the author's original work, has not already been published in whole or in substantial part elsewhere, and is not part of a work that is currently under consideration for publication elsewhere.

2. Submissions must be in a form suitable for blind review. The manuscript should contain no information likely to enable a reader to infer the author's identity. The author's address and other pertinent personal information should appear in a separate document. Submissions not prepared for blind review will be rejected outright. See the ACPQ "Submission Guidelines" for other formatting requirements.

3. The manuscript must be accompanied by an abstract (150 words maximum), which should be inserted between the title and the beginning of the article.

4. Please submit manuscripts electronically at https://mc04.manuscriptcentral.com/acpq.

5. Please direct any questions regarding the submission process to acpq@stthomas.edu.
